Daman Knight. sidewalk, which wasn't possible, due to a cold wave that persisted through most of January. He left a windsock and open cockpit, this one was a mad confusion of dials, switches, and lights designed to awe. "I'm sure," she mumbled. "You people know how long they trained Lou to fly this thing? And he up. The winds couldn't bury them that deep in only twelve thousand years." The editor hereby makes grateful acknowledgment to the following authors and authors' representatives for giving permission to reprint the material in this volume: He grinned. "Haven't you heard? We can spot each other a mile away. Would you like some coffee?" Falls sat back in his chair and cast a routine eye around the monitor room. Everything seemed to be running smoothly at the crew stations beyond the glass partition behind his console, and the other displays confirmed that all else was as it should be. The reserve tank to Number 2 vernier motor had been recharged after a slight course-correction earlier and was checking out at "Ready" again. All the fuel, coolant, primary and standby power, hydraulic, pneumatic, gas, oil, life-support, and instrumentation subsystems servicing the Drive Section were performing well within limits. Way back near the tail, the banks of gigantic fusion reactors were gobbling up the 35 million tons of hydrogen that had been magnetically ram scooped out of space throughout the twenty-year voyage and converting over two tons of its mass into energy every second to produce the awesome, 1.5-mile-diameter blast of radiation and reaction products that would have to burn for six months to slow the 140-million-ton mass of the Mayflower II down from its free-cruise velocity. He nodded. "First time tonight. In fact, this is my first time ever in any speakeasy. I just got my license yesterday." He became aware of the wind. It was blowing steadily up from the south. I could smell the sea in it. Some people fear clones, on the other hand, because they imagine that morons will be cloned in order to make it possible to build up a great army of cannon fodder that despots will use for world conquest. 72 Edward Bryant. Three weeks later, the Tharsis Canyon had been transformed into a child's garden of toys. Crawford had thought of no better way to describe it. Each of the plastic spikes had blossomed into a fanciful windmill, no two of them just alike. There were tiny ones, with the vanes parallel to the ground and no more than ten centimeters tall. There were derricks of spidery plastic struts that would not have looked too out of place on a Kansas farm. Some of them were five meters high. They came in all colors and many configurations, but all had vanes covered with a transparent film like cellophane, and all were spinning into colorful blurs in the stiff Martian breeze. Crawford thought of an industrial park built by gnomes. He could almost see them trudging through the spinning wheels. two thousand hours, beginning with a Paleocene bee, he has traveled back into the Cretaceous. He stops. The dancer raised a brow. An armored VIP carrier bearing a general's insignia on its nose was angling toward them. Colman shifted his M32 to the other shoulder and straightened up to watch. "Smarten it up," he called to the rest of Third Platoon, who were smoking, talking, and lounging in groups by the stream and around the bunker. The cigarettes were ground out under the heavy soles of combat boots, the chattering died away, and the groups shuffled themselves into tidier ranks.
